SUMMARY

IMPROVED SUBMERSIBLE FARM

10 The end floats from which the line of cables bearing the culture ropes is suspended and the cylindrical buoys that maintain said line horizontally comprise a filling/draining system using water by way of ballast in order to lift or submerge the line by inflating said floats with air.

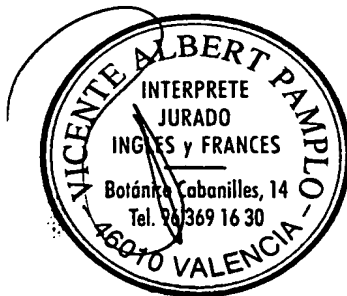

15 Submerged tension buoys, connected to the floats by means of tension cables and pulleys which are fixed to the dead weights provided at either end of the line, create a vertical thrust which causes the pulley to stretch the cable and tauten the line.
